Input Bias Current. Before introducing the effects of PCB layout on accuracy, the input bias current specification (Ib) must be understood. Input bias current is defined as "The average of the currents into the two input terminals with the output at the specified level." [1] Ideally this specification is 0A, but process variations and design Open Source applications for QNX / List openqnx-developer ...

I heard some warnings about 'cifs' being terribly slow on QNX, but it's almost unusable! I must be doing something wrong, since even the finest gcc compilation over the link (no problems creating it, or doing a simple 'ls') more or less freezes the console.
