The main objective of this book is to provide students and laboratory instructors at universities and professional ecologists with a broad range of established methods to study plant litter decomposition. Detailed protocols for direct use in the field or laboratory are presented in an easy to follow step-by-step format. A short introduction to each protocol reviews the ecological significance and principles of the technique and points to key references. Although This neglect partly reflects the fact that emphasis in the chemical characterization of decomposing litter has been placed on nutrients, particularly in terms of nitrogen (Enriquez et al. 1993), and refractory litter constituents such as lignin (e.g. Gessner & Chauvet 1994, Palm & Rowland 1997). The currently available data show, however, that lipids can be a sizeable fraction of plant litter.
