The daily dispatch. (Richmond [Va.]) 1850-1884, July 02 ...

When the vacation was going on, seven of the company of the Third Louisiana battalion managed to make their escape; and it was thought by the officers that the whole company was about to desert and a strict watch was kept upon them. They were, never allowed, until lately, to go out picket, although their services were frequently needed. At length they of course seemed to regain
